FOR OUR PRAYERS:

Mike: the doctor adjusted his meds, if not better soon will need to see a specialist. Please continue to pray for him!

Butch: prayers for overall strength & good health.

Pete: is treating the cancerous spot on his head at home with a special cream.

Hazel: seems to be doing better with her heart monitor now.

Jerry: prayers for overall good health.

Gloria Z.: had another test this past Tues., and is scheduled for a “virtual appt.” on 5/11.

Brenda: appt. for procedure on legs scheduled for mid-July.

Megan S.: had a cold last week, which always affects her platelet numbers. Please continue to keep praying for her back pain issues as well.

Herman P. (Ellen's dad): Prayers for him & his caregivers, especially during the difficult days.

Mark Munch (Greg's friend & mentor): will begin chemo & radiation treatments for recently diagnosed brain cancer.

McCoy Watson: is still in ICU in St. Louis, but seems to be doing some better. He's on blood dialysis & still needs a kidney transplant. Please pray for him.

Daniel & Nicki Niehls: high-risk pregnancy (3rd child, 1st boy) – Nicki is scheduled for a C-section in a couple of weeks. Please pray that she does not go into premature labor before then.

Prayers of Sympathy for Judith (Price) Brown in Utah: her husband James passed away on 4/17/23.

How Secure is Your Anchor?

Are you anchored securely in God's Word? No matter what storms may arise in your life, God's truth always stands firm and prevails. Every form of earthly security may disappoint you, but Scripture will not. The challenge is believing Scripture when all else seems contrary. This is what Peter faced as he walked on the wind-battered sea to Jesus. Even though Jesus called to him, Peter was distracted by the storm and began to sink under the raging waves. The key is keeping our eyes fixed on Him, and our hearts anchored in Scripture. His Word doesn't fail and neither will you when you trust in Him. So, spend time daily reading your Bible & securing your anchor.
